Graduate Medical School In Watts Hospital Plans

Development of a post-graduate medical school for the new Watts Hospital is under way, announces Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

Hahn said the plans call for the medical school to be operated by the Charles Drew Medical Society in cooperation with the University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Supervisor Hahn points out this will "make the hospital not only a great institution for the treatment of the sick and injured, but also a major training facility for young doctors and nurses."

Hahn has been spearheading County efforts to build the hospital on a 29.5-acre site at 120th street and Wilmington Avenue in the Watts-Wilbrook area.

This site, presently occupied by the old Palm Lane Housing Project, is now being transferred into County ownership.

A financial consultant is expected to be appointed by the Board of Supervisors within the next two weeks to help program the development of the hospital.

PLANS CALL for the formation of a non-profit organization which will issue low-interest revenue bonds to finance the facility's construction.

A team of three leading architects is at work drawing plans for the hospital.

The need for a hospital in this area has been strongly established by the McCone Commission and medical authorities who point out that residents of the area now depend primarily upon Los Angeles County General Hospital or Harbor General Hospital — each approximately 10 miles away — for medical care.

'Younger Generation' Is Target Of Special Registration Drives

The "younger generation" is already known for its buying power and other influences on today's world. There is good reason.

Consider: A person can become a representative to the Congress of the United States at age 25.

A person can become governor of California at age 25.

A person of 30 can be elected to the U. S. Senate.

A person of 21 can vote.

In pointing out these facts, E. Hornsby Wasson, president of the California Non-Partisan Voter Registration Committee, urged all persons who will reach the age of 21 by Nov. 8 to start their way up the ladder to political awareness by registering to vote in the general election.

ahead," he said. "A great number of persons who could not vote in the June primary because they were under age suddenly will become eligible. Our task is to motivate them to register before Sept. 15 so they can vote Nov. 8."

The committee's overall program will attempt to seek out approximately 2½ million Californians who could vote in the general election, but won't be able to unless they register by Sept. 15.

Reserves Get New Commander

Fred Banker, owner of a public relations firm and a colonel in the U. S. Army Reserve, has assumed command of the 6325th Information Unit stationed at the West Los Angeles Reserve Center.

The unit, which supports the information activities of the regular reserve units, has vacancies in both commissioned and enlisted grades for qualified individuals who have no reserve obligation.

Banker said Applications are being accepted at the unit headquarters, 1250 Federal Ave., Los Angeles. The 6325th was formed through the efforts of Brig. Gen. Frank McCarthy (USAR).

It has been commanded by Lt. Col. Joseph M. Quinn, aide to Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty; Lt. Col. James McNamara, Los Angeles newsman and broadcaster, and Lt. Col. Fred Allen.
